Cottenham is a relatively large and thriving village situated about 6 miles north of Cambridge. Facilities in the village include a primary school and village college, library, an impressive parish church dating from 13th century and a range of shops and pubs. The village is well placed for access to major road routes and is within reach of the main line stations at Cambridge North and Waterbeach which provide direct links into Cambridge and London Kings Cross.

Number 123 is a detached Victorian house of character situated on the High Street between Broad Lane and Rook Street. The house which was modernised in around the 1970s retaining many period features including cast iron fireplaces and panelled doors would now benefit from some further updating and improvement.
